DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's election of Fig. 2 species in Paper No. 6 is acknowledged. Because applicant did not distinctly and specifically point out the supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election has been treated as an election without traverse (MPEP § 818.03(a)). Claims 35-43 do not read on the elected Fig. 2 species which requires the cleaning fabric supply roll 10 to be dipped into the cleaning solvent to get soaked. Rather, claims 35-43 appear to read on either of species as shown by Fig. 6 and Fig. 7. Accordingly, claims 35-43 have been withdrawn from further consideration. Claim 51 reads on the elected Fig. 2 species and is currently under consideration.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 51 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Aoki(5,509,353) in view of Gasparrini et al(5,368,157). Aoki teaches the method of presoaking a cleaning cloth to be used in a printing press cylinder cleaning system as claimed including a cleaning web supply roll 60 and a take-up roll 61, and a cleaning web 59 being fed out from the supply roll 60, soaked with a cleaning solvent as it passes through cleaning solvent reservoir 77, pressed against the printing cylinder 11 by the pressure pad 55 for cleaning the cylinder, and then taken up by the take-up roll 61. See the entire document of Aoki for example. However, Aoki does not discuss the type of cleaning solvent used in the process. Gasparrini et al. teach the conventionality of soaking a cleaning strip by immersing the cleaning strip fed out from a supply roll through a tank of low volatility, organic compound cleaning solvent in order for the cleaning strip to be saturated with the cleaning solvent or by immersing the entire cleaning strip supply roll in the cleaning solvent for soaking. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the tray container of Aoki with a low volatility organic compound cleaning solvent to presoak the cleaning cloth so as to effectively reduce the loss of cleaning solvent through evaporation and to cut cost.
